Search Party Finds Frozen Body of Lac la Biche Man

LAC LA BICHE — The severe blizzard which swept over the entire province, the afternoon of Dec. 31, claimed the life of an elderly man in the Lac la Biche area.

Peter Froland, 66, resident of the Lac la Biche district for some 35 years, perished in the worst blizzard of the season, New Year's night. Mr. Froland, who lived at Mile 37, was staying with friends on the outskirts of town during the holidays. He apparently had set out to visit friends nearer town New Year's night and in the storm and darkness, lost his way till he fell from exhaustion and cold.

When he was reported missing Friday morning a search began but the severe weather and slippery condition of the roads hampered the rescue. The body was found Friday afternoon about 4:00 p.m. by Ted Mackriss who was assisting the RCMP. Mr. Froland is survived by one son Johnny Froland of Edmonton. The funeral was held Monday, Jan. 5 from the United church, burial being in the Lac la Biche Cemetery.

Plamondon Wins Honors Second Time In Row In 1959 First Baby Contest

LAC LA BICHE — A Plamondon baby again took top honors in the 1959 baby derby at St. Catherine's hospital in Lac la Biche. Baby Patrick Joseph Dube, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Dube, arrived at 11:30 p.m., Saturday, Jan. 3, to qualify for many valuable prizes for himself and his family from merchants of the town of Lac la Biche.

Baby Dube has two sisters Pauline and Collette and two brothers Gerald and Norman. He weights 6 lbs. 2 oz., measures 21 inches and has blue eyes.

Dr. W. Cadzow was the attending physician, assisted by nurses Sister Zenaid Marie and Mrs. Herbert Scott.

The first New Year's baby in 1958 at St. Catherine's was that of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Belanger of Plamondon.

A suitable welcome to Baby Dube has been arranged by Lac la Biche businessmen in the form of practical gifts for baby and parents.

To help the first baby of the year develop a taste ror music Lac la Biche Electric is presenting two children's records. Certainly Pauline, Collette, Gerald and Norman will share the joy of listening to good music, too.

STEPPING OUT

When junior steps out for a little exercise, the pair of baby shoes he'll receive from John's Shoe Store will be just the thing for him.

Mind you, Baby Dube will be well-dressed, too. He'll be wearing a set of rompers from the Lac la Biche Mercantile. And he'll have the choice of a silk dress from the 5c to $1.00 Store and a nylon baby dress from Robinson Stores.

If he's blessed with a goodly quantity of hair, the brush and comb from Stewart's Rexall Drug will help him to look his best in his new outfit. Stewart's is also giving Baby Dube a baby set.

Now when Mom and Dad Dube tour the Lac la Biche district to show off their proud newcomer their car will be in tip-top shape. To take the squeaks out of it, OK Motors Ltd. will give it a free grease job. To keep it running smoothly, Triway Service Garage will change the oil at no cost to the owners.

TRAVEL HELPS

Lac la Biche Sales and Service will put $2.00 worth of BA Velvet 98 into the family car to get it where its going and an equal amount of Esso gas will be provided by Lac la Biche Garage for the return trip.

Some of the gas will be used to drive around Lac la Biche to pick up the New Year's baby gifts. Mom and Dad Dube can have more than a coffee break at the Royal Cafe. The Royal will treat them to a full course meal. Just what Baby Dube will eat is up to Mom, but she could warm up one of the tins from the case of Gerber's Baby Food, the gift from Michael Hamar Co. Ltd., or sample the case of Heinz Baby Food donated by the Hudson's Bay Company.

After a satisfying meal at the Royal, the Dubes will drop into George Homeniuk's and make use of a $25 discount certificate on a major appliance or Oliver Farm machinery.

After spending the day in Lac la Biche making the rounds of stores who took part in the Lac la Biche Herald's 1959 baby contest, they will return to Lac la Biche leaving everyone wondering who'll be first in 1960 at St. Catherine's.

M.D. Athabasca Council Discusses Problems Of Smoke From Fires

Considerable discussion about smoke from fires north of the river was held at the last meeting of the council of the M.D. of Athabasca held at Meanook on Dec. 29, which was opened by Reeve Breckenridge.

It was stated it was the responsibility of the man who owned the fire to erect signs and flares. Motion was made to notify the owners of the fire to erect danger signs and maintain flares on the road at a reasonable distance in advance of the area covered by smoke arising from fires on their lands until such time as the smoke hazard has been taken care of and that they be further instructed to extinguish the burning piles to the best of their ability.

Correspondence was read. An offer was accepted from Walter Peters for purchase of land which he has held under lease, pending receipt of title from the department. An offer from the SSB was accepted in regard to payment for land taken for an expropriated road. Contract was signed for purchase of a snow plow and wing from Waterloo Motors.

Permission for temporary road through a farmer's pasture land was withdrawn as the man for whom the road was obtained has not placed a gate and kept it closed in accord with the agreement. Any further negotiations wil have to be between the two men.

A requisition was presented for Civil Defence, for 1959. This was discussed and signed and instruction given to pay the $100 still owing from the 1958 budget.

One parcel was sold which had been taken for taxes, and one former owner redeemed his parcel.

Reeve Breckenridge, in conclusion, thanked the council for the year's work just ended, he said it was a good year as far as municipal work was concerned. He appreciated the co-operation he had received. He wished them all a Happy New Year.

Speaking as Deputy Reeve, Councillor George Fleming thanked Mr. Breckenridge and said he would miss most the spirit of fellowship of the council. The members were always good friends he sadi, and even after discussions there were no hard feelings.

The council voted a parting gift to the two secretaries, and four other office employees.

REPORT FROM ENGLAND

An Old Country Naval Story Almost Incredible, But True

By Rev. J. E. McGrane

While visiting here in England I have been doing many things of a sentimental nature, like visiting former places where I lived, meeting old school friends, walking down familiar lanes etc., but a few days ago I had an experience that is almost unbelievable.

Having a free day with nothing to do, I decided to go to the East Coast and visit the Coastguard Station at Sizewell Gap, where I was stationed for a few months during the First World War, so I went to Liverpool Station and took the first train out to Saxmundham.

When I arrived there I noticed some buses. There were no buses forty years ago in this locality, and as I had to get to Leiston, four or five miles away I enquired if any busses went that direction and I was informed that one would be leaving in twenty minutes, so I waited and chatted with the drivers and conductors.

In the course of the conversation I told them that it was 40 years since I had been in this part of England and I asked them if the Coastguard Station was still at Sizewell and I was told that it was but that I would have to walk a couple of miles after I got to Leiston.

Of course I knew this as I had done it often before. However, when I arrived as Leiston a rather cheerful gentleman walked up to me as I alighted from the bus, he held out his hand and said, "Welcome to Leiston, we have been expecting you".

I replied, "Now just a minute, there must be some mistake".

It was a Friday and I thought they may be expecting a new clergyman, or something. But no, he insisted that he was looking for me, so I told him that I had not been in that distrirt since the First Great War and that surely there must be some mistake.

He said no, there was no mistake and that he was the editor of the Leiston Observer so I said, "O.K., what's the catch". And then Mr. Waddell, as was his name, told me that someone had heard the conversation at the bus station and had telephoned ahead, and so the mystery was cleared up.

The foregoing was a pleasant surprise for me but there was more to come. Mr. Waddell kindly offered to drive me to Sizewell and as it had started to rain I was glad of this, but in the meantime I visited the newspaper office and went in to the printing department and then Mr. Waddell and staff got a surprise themselves when I sat at the linotype and operated it.

We talked about different people who lived around there when I was stationed at the Coastguard Station and I found out that one of the men who was one of the coast-watchers at that, Sid Booty, was still living at Sizewell, as his father, whom I knew, had done before him, both being fishermen. So off we went to Sizewell Gap.

We were there in a few minutes and then I saw a sight which I had not seen for forty years and it was just as if I had never been away, the old building with "H.M. Coastguard Station" painted across the door, the actual look-out. Then on the hill the quarters for the permanent staff, and to the left the billets we used during the war. On the way out I noticed the old pillboxes erected during the first war.

Then as it has been doing for eons, the North Sea washing the shore of England and the fishing smacks lined up in front of the capstans on the shingled beach, only now they had motors in them as well as sail. When I was last here they had only sail.

It was now raining hard and a strong breeze from the sea. Nevertheless, I walked along the edge of the water for a little way, reminiscent of the time when we patrolled that part of the coast many years ago and once more my footsteps were imprinted in the sands as they were forty years past . . . until the next tide came in!

Mr. Waddell drove me around and told me that this little out of the way place was soon to change. As a matter of fact I had just come back in time to see it as I used to know it, for now a great national project is soon to commence and a large atomic plant is to be erected here in Sizewell.

Then we called at the home of Mr. Sid Booty. He was not in but his wife told us that he was at the fishing hut. Now comes the real amazing part of this story. Sid is older than I am, he was about 30 the last time I saw him, now he is around 70, but I must say that when I saw him I knew him. However, we found him in the hut and the strange part of it all is, is that is exactly where I last saw him when I went to say good-bye to him at the cessation of hostilities in 1918 and I was going home to be "demobbed".

We had a wonderful chat and amongst other things we mentioned was the Sizewell Light. This was a specially erected lighthouse and it was only used once, that was when the fleet went out to Zeebrugee to block up the Kiel Canal. This operation, headed by H.M.S. Vindictive was successful and was one of the greatest naval actions of the war.

The light was lit at that time to be used as a bearing for the ships during the operation. Mr. Waddel had not heard of this and he remarked how strange it was that someone had to come 6,000 miles to recall a local happening.

This was truly a sentimental journey and even to me it is hard to believe that it happened just that way and for a little while at least, time had been turned back forty years.

Norway boasts one of the lowest crime rates in the world.

The Crow's Nest Pass Agreement

The way things are shaping up, grain producers of Western Canada may be faced with a full scale battle if they are to retain the freight rates on export grain as established under the Crow's Nest Pass Agreement. Rail officials have become increasingly vociferous in their criticism of the rates and newspapers in other parts of Canada have been taking up the chorus. Within the past two weeks both CPR President N. P. Crump and Vice-President R. A. Emerson have made widely publicized attacks on the Crow's Nest Pass rates.

What bothers farm people about these attacks is that only part of the story is being told. Rail officials never mention the large cash and land grants (including mineral rights) the railway received at the time the agreement was signed. Nor do they mention that as a result of the agreement, the CPR gained control of the smelter at Trail, which subsequently developed into Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company and which has paid the CPR millions upon millions of dollars in dividends.

Surely the Canadian public is entitled to the full story of the Crow's Nest Pass Agreement — not just the one side.

The federal government has decided to have a comprehensive study made of rail rates in Canada. In the interim a cabinet committee has been set up to lay plans for a short term solution to Canada's critical rail problem. It is to be hoped that the present government is fully aware of the importance to prairie farmers of maintaining low freight rates on export grain. Without this, prairie farmers would find it even more difficult to compete in the world grain markets.

On a number of occasions cabinet members of the previous administration stated that as long as their party was in power, the Crow's Nest Pass rate would not be disturbed. Similar assurances from the present government would be appreciated by western grain producers.

Winter, 1958

The last of the four seasons is upon us. This year winter began at 3:40 a.m. Dec. 21, and the day is officially known as the Winter Solstice. This is the time of year when the North Pole is tilted 23 degrees and 27 minutes away from the sun, and the nights in the Northern Hemisphere are much longer than the days.

Likewise, in the South Temperate Zone the Summer Solstice occurs on Dec. 21, and summer begins!

Winter ends after two-thirds of March has expired in 1959. The experts are saying chances are very good that this winter will not be as severe as the 1957-1958 winter, which was the coldest experienced in the United States in some years.

One of the opportunities winter affords all of us is to catch up on our reading, that is, good things to read, to acquaint ourselves again with members of the family who live in the same house, to enjoy nights together in front of the fire, or in the family room, to follow our indoor hobbies, or studies, or to hunt or enjoy other vigorous cold-weather outdoor pursuits.

The nights, the shortest of which is Dec. 21, will grow longer afterwards, day by day, until night and day will be equalized in March, at the Vernal Equinox, which ushers in Spring.

Note and Comment

Love, it has been said, flows downward. The love of parents for their children has always been far more powerful than that of children for their parents; and who among thousandth part of the love which God has thusandth part of the love which God has manifested to us? —J. C. Hare.

Air-Lift To The Moon

Ten years ago the Western Powers were supplying the beleaguered city of Berlin with a costly air lift. Ground and water approaches to the former German capital were blockaded and it was a case of feeding Berlin by air or allowing the great city to be starved into submission to the communists.

Last month, the Russians threatened to again blockade Berlin and this time they have it fixed so that an air lift won't be much help. Will there be war next June over Berlin? There is a very real possibility.

Not so likely is the possibility of war over who is going to own the moon. At least not in 1959. Last week the Russians successfully launched a large projectile (pay load nearly 800 lbs.) that went to the vicinity of the moon and overshot the big satellite. Soon, they say, they will land men on the moon and build there a station from which to launch space flights elsewhere.

If the Russians succeed in doing that, they'll need an "Air-Lift" to the moon. Of course, it would be only partially an air lift. The first 100 miles of the journey would be through the earth's atmosphere and the next 250,000 miles approximately through empty space.

Perhaps there isn't any real connections between Russian designs on the moon and communist plans to take over West Berlin. We just hope the big powers get so busy trying to dominate outer space that war on earth will be forgotten and a thing of the past.

Religions And Unity

It is always a delicate subject to editorialize about religions, for there are about as many viewpoints on this broad topic as there are people, and no one can be absolutely sure he knows all the answers, and that his fellowman is wrong. However, one thing seems to be obvious, as far as one of the great hopes of the world is concerned.

This hope has, too often, met with disappointment throughout the centuries. It is the hope of man that the religions and the religious leaders of the world can unite and join forces to better work for a better world. History is full of the tragic story of religious wars, fanatical killings and violent disagreements, presecutions, inquisitions, and the like.

Many of these wars were caused by narrow-minded religious fanatics, who were determined to force their views upon others. We in America enjoy a degree of religious freedom which is rare among the countries of the world, and it is something which we sometimes fail to realize is not enjoyed in many countries even today.

Man must one day realize that no group of religious leaders are justified in concluding that they are infallible, setting forth rules, dogma, and rituals for others, and concluding that others live in sin if they don't follow the system — once they are exposed to it.

Obviously, such a narrow-minded concept can forever prevent the various religions and religious leaders of the world from uniting to achieve greater progress in making this a better world, and making all of us better citizens.

Simple Rules For Farmers

A formula for cutting farm costs that is so simple it may have escaped the attention of some producers is given by G. A. MacEachern of the Prince George, B.C., Experimental Farm.

Labor and machinery form half of crop production costs, he says, recommending that you:

Plan and budget your labor requirements; keep labor relations good with good working conditions and help out on the unpleasant chores.

Plan and budget machinery requirements to fit your farming operation, and get the most out of your equipment without rushing the job.

The honest workman delivers the time he sells with the same certainty that he expects the farmer to deliver the bushel that he pays for.

THREE CHEERS

I'd like to give three rollicking good cheers for the two Calgary firms that have done away with office parties. Instead of pouring their money into booze and cheezies, the companies' are going to provide scholarships for the children of staff members. Now that's using the ol' noodle.

Another cheer, since I'm in that mood, should go to Raymond, Alta. residents. Last Christmas they stopped sending cards and pooled the money they would have spent, netting $800 for community projects. If other communities would do this, too, think how much good would result. If church members followed suit, they could boost their missionary budgets considerably. —CHEERY, Edmonton.

A NATION IN HOCK

Where is Canada heading for with all this deficit financing? We are now going deeper in debt. We all know you can live good if you spend more than you make, borrow continuously and do not pay it back. But surely we must have some people smart enough to know that the false bubble of prosperity must end in financial disaster and internal collapse. —W.J.G. Vegreville.

SEES TROUBLE FOR GENTS

A male Voicer said that, because there are superfluous women, polygamy should be legalized. I say that men like that are just asking for trouble. Who would their extra wives be? Most single girls today want too much from a man—as witness the number of foreign brides of our servicemen. Divorcees are emotionally immature.
JOAN E.

ARTICLE COMMENDED

You are to be highly commended for your article on the Brutal Parent; if other publications had the intestinal fortitude to go after this sort of brutality to children, I would hope that there would be less of it. The sentence meted out to Alfred Edwyn Bompas plus the expression of sympathy from the judge will be in my opinion very heartening to other parents with like tendencies. I presume the Attorney - General's department is appealing the sentence as being inadequate, if so, the Social Credit government is to be commended, I have never heard of any other government doing same. Every reader of your publications should write you. CITIZEN
Stanger, Alta.

THE VIEWING AUDIENCE

I realize the necessity for radio and TV commercials, but why can they not be rendered more intelligently—not in the usual screaming, repetitious, stupid manner? Of course, there are exceptions, with dignified and pleasant voices making sense. These I will listen to, but I will never buy merchandise advertised by any of those loud, disgusting commercials, even if the product is the very thing I am seeking. —Mrs. D.B.L. Edmonton.

THANK YOU NOTE

On behalf of the Alberta Division, Canadian Red Cross Society, it is my pleasure to extend sincere wishes for a Happy New Year endowed with "good health" and "good fortune".

We are happy to report that during the past 12 months Red Cross has maintained its services in Alberta. Continuance of our humanitarian work has been made possible in large degree by the whole-hearted support which we have received from the news media in this province.

For your continued assistance and co-operation in publicizing the work of our society we say a heartfelt "thank you."

DIFFERENT TREATMENT

I have been very interested in the letters and comments on cruelty to children and often wonder at the different forms it takes. I know the child welfare department has to be very careful as to which homes they send children into. I couldn't get another one because I didn't have a nice enough home, even if folks say I did do a good job on the two I did raise. They still like to come home when they get a chance. I know of one woman who has a lovely home but one of the welfare wards had to be sent to a mental institute because the discipline was so strict. The house was big and well kept (the wards kept it so or else!) but love was minus and dollars were plus. If half the questions were asked and half the inspections were carried out before some of these young people were married, maybe there wouldn't be so many broken homes or neglected children. Most start housekeeping with only the loot they gather at showers and wedding gifts. Oh, well, I'm just a bitter old maid.

SUPPORTS STAND

I agree with you whole-heartedly on your stand in the recent brutal beating to death of the little Bompas boy. Like most people I was literally sick at the detailed testimony at the trial.

When one thinks of the mental anguish and terror the lad must have suffered for years living, if it can be called that, under such conditions words can't do it justice. I felt nothing could be worse than the callous remarks of the father but when I read where the child's mother stood by and watched her child being beaten to a pulp and left on the floor I can't describe what it did to me. Even in the animal kingdom, so-called dumb beasts will protect their young with their lives.

It is beyond me to understand why neighbors knowing the lad was being ill-used didn't report the first black eye, etc. to the proper authorities. I couldn't stand to see such results of cruelty without making it my business to do something about it at once. There are too many who are afraid to report such things for fear they will have to appear in court. They ought to be glad to do so for the protection of any child.

I shall be glad to hear how the association which Mr. Hooke has offered to set up progresses. Perhaps you will bring it to the attention of your readers and let us know what we can do to help. I will be glad to do anything I can here in my district to bring it to the attention of the people here.

Mrs. BERYL BAILEY,
Alcomdale.

FARMERS IN LUXURY

I am one of those consumers who, while "beefing" about prices of beef and other farm commodities, still thought the farmers had grounds for complaint.

I've changed my mind. I was out visiting friends in the country the other day when an FUA canvasser dropped in. The arguments and the leaflet he left "Where is the Family Farm Headed?" left me dazed and wondering. It seems that the farmers come out of our banks waving fistfuls of money with smiling faces, either as straight one-dollar an acre gifts from the taxpayers, or as interest free loans, nor is this all: we're told that drought and hail are nothing for the farmers to worry about now, since "PFAA will give them money to pay the grocery bill". And no wonder pork, butter and beef are luxuries, a gift of two dollars per hog, and "extra cash for new clothes for the kids or money for a new hat" out of subsidized cream prices. So Mr. Farmer why worry.

Of course I will have to admit that my farm friends and their friends tell me the FUA pamphlet does not tell the whole story, and blush a wee bit when nothing was said about "Cost Price Pressure" and that the farm share of consumer dollar is down 45% when it costs 55 cents to market what it costs 45 cents to produce, and that the farm prices in 1957 were down 4.4 points while farm costs in 1957 were up 8.2 points, and that the glowing pictures on the pamphlets are only presented for the purpose of getting the farmer to dig down deep to pay dues by presenting him with glowing pictures of the great benefits that have accrued because of the Farmers' Union.

This is hard to believe, but it could be true, because on the last picture of the pamphlet it shows a young lady going through reducing exercises—indicating that the farmers could be so well off that they now need to reduce after obtaining all of these benefits. So I guess I was wrong when I thought the farmer had room for complaint. The pamphlet says different.

Pope Enjoys Long Concert

VATICAN CITY — Pope John XXIII, seated on a throne, listened to a concert in the Vatican's Hall of Benedictions.

The concert, performed by the orchestra of Venice's La Fenice Opera House, was a tribute from the Lagoon City of which the pope was patriarch until his election to the papacy two months ago.

The concert and the papal audience which followed lasted three hours. The 77-year-old pope spoke to the guests for 40 minutes, and seemed in excellent spirits and health. He showed no sign of strain despite his rigorous schedule. His physician, Prof. Filippo Rocchi, denied reports the pontiff has a cold and said he was in good health.

"OLD BIG-EARS"

The biggest elephant in the world is the African elephant, says the Book of nowledge. It stands from 11 to 12 feet at the shoulder, and weights four to five tons. Its ears are enormous.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

Question: How can I be a Christian and not be accused of being peculiar by the other kids in High School?
V. H.

Answer: If you will keep the two things clearly separated you will find your problem so much easier. Being a Christian is the important thing and it involves a commitment of your life to Him as Saviour and Lord. What happens after that is of minor importance for none of us is injured by what people think about us. To be a true Christian means that we live by the ideals Christ would give us as the pattern for our lives. This means an attitude to and a way of daily living that must be distinct from the world and those who do not know Christ. While some will think you "peculiar," do not let this disturb you for just as many others will secretly admire you for your stand. But be sure that you do not assume a sanctimonious attitude to others, or an attitude that you are better than others. Always remember that a Christian is only a sinner saved by grace and that we have no possible cause of boasting or of pride. It is very possible that you will be persecuted by jokes and be misunderstood by some. If you accept this with patience and in a spirit of love, God can use this very thing to help you win some of your friends. Try at all times to show the joy and happiness in your life which a Christian should have. Actually, we are the only people in the world who have a right to be happy for we know where we are now, Who is our Saviour, and where we are going. Pray for your friends and love them. God will bless and use you to win them.

THE Homemaker

By EDITH WITNEY

The holidays are over and it's back to "comparatively" normal living for all of us. Did Santa bring you that fur coat or jacket that you have been wishing for for so many years? To those of you who do own a fur coat here are a few suggestions which will add to both its life and beauty:

FUR FACTS

Heat makes fur brittle. Never dry a damp fur on a radiator or hang it in the sun.

Rain and snow won't hurt a fur coat, but poor drying will. When your furs become damp, shake them thoroughly and hang them up in a cool place, where they are not pressed against other objects. Never brush a wet fur.

Hang coats or jackets on sturdy hangers, never on hooks. Give them enough space so that they are not crushed by other garments.

Furs should be shaken often, and occasionally given a gentle brushing in the direction of the nap.

Friction will, in time, rub off any fur. Try to avoid localized rubbing, as in carrying pocketbooks or bundles.

Rips can be minimized by such habits as unbuttoning the coat while you sit and keeping hands generally out of pockets. Small rips become large easily, and expensive to repair. Have any rips repaired at once.

Annual cleaning by the "drum sawdust" method is desirable. "Glazing" a process which restores luster to dull looking furs by the addition of some oil, should be done as needed, up to several times a year if the coat is worn a good deal. Glazing not only improves appearance, but it helps keep fur from becoming brittle.

Since warmth is bad for furs, cold storage is recommended during the months when the coat is not being worn, — don't try to mothproof a fur with chemicals.

The cost of major repairs and restyling is apt to run high. When the estimate for an alteration job starts to run to about 25% of the original price of the garment, you should consider carefully whether a better course would not be conversion of the coat to a jacket, stole, or cape, or its use as a lining for a cloth coat.

The groom was attended by bestmen Mr. Denis Malo, Mr. George Chevigny and Mr. Octave Chevigny. The usher was Mr. Alex Lemay.
